By John I. Scull. No. 42

Tuesday December 23, 1817,

ADDRESS,

Delivered by William Findlay, Esq. to both Houses of the Legislature, on his Inauguration, Dec. 16, 1817.

Friends and Fellow-citizens,

IN entering upon the discharge of those duties to which I have been called by the voice of the people, I avail myself of the opportunity now presented, to return to them, through you, my acknowledgements for this distinguished mark of their favour and confidence. Sensible, as I am, of the arduous duties, and high responsibilities, imposed by the constitution and laws on the executive magistrate of our state, I shall not expect to discharge them without having occasion to rely on the continuance of that favour and confidence, and to solicit indulgence for such imperfections as may occur. An exemption from error, it were presumption to expect; but whatever can be effected by an ardent attachment to our republican institutions, by a zeal in the performance of duty, strengthened by those solemn sanctions which you have just witnessed, and from an entire devotion of my best abilities and untiring industry to the public welfare, I may confidently promise. With the exertion of these, aided by your wisdom, patriotism and friendly dispositions, a kind Providence, I humbly trust, will continue to dispense to our beloved country, those blessings, by which it has hitherto been so preeminently distinguished.

I cannot but felicitate myself, when I reflect on the auspiciousness of the period, at which the task of administering these duties has been assigned to me. I am cheered by the recollection, that I shall have the advantage of the example of my distinguished predecessor, who has filled the chair of state for the constitutional term, with signal fidelity and success. Through a period of uncommon national difficulty and embarrassment, terminating at length in war, this state has fulfilled her duty to the nation, free from the influence of sectional prejudice and local jealousy, while in her interior, the march of improvement has been both steady and rapid. In the mean time, the general government has been so wisely conducted, as to have advanced the interests, and eminently secured the confidence of its citizens. It is at peace at home and abroad, and its character respected by all nations.

These results furnish new proofs of the efficiency of a republican government. Founded on the popular will, and administered by agents of the people's choice, it it has ceased to be a matter of experiment, but has proved itself competent to the demands of peace, and the exigencies of war—to the preservation of the general weal, and to the diffusion of private happiness.

Thanks to the wisdom, the patriotism and the valor of our ancestors, it is not left to us, fellow-citizens, to purchase our liberties at the price of our blood. To them, under the guidance of the Great Arbiter of nations, we are indebted for manifold blessings; yet there remains to us a wide field of usefulness, demanding the employment of our best faculties. Pennsylvania, as well from her locality, as from her population and resources, forms an important member of the union, and her measures thence derive a powerful influence. It becomes us, then, in a spirit of conciliation and forbearance, with harmony of design, and unity of action, to endeavour to render ourselves worthy of the high trust to which we are called, and of the continued approbation of our country, by persevering in a disinterested devotion to her cause, and by cultivating with care those means we possess of advancing the general interests.

To accelerate the progress of internal improvement, and thereby unite the whole state in one common bond of interest; to uphold, by all our energy, the liberty and independence of our country; to guard the rights of every citizen of the Commonwealth; to maintain the legitimate sovereignty of the state, on the one hand, whilst, on the other, we perform with fidelity our federal obligations; to provide for the general dissemination of knowledge; to advance, by salutary regulations the prosperity of agriculture, manufactures and commerce, so far as they fall within the pale of state legislation; to render the administration of justice easy, expeditious and satisfactory; to establish an efficient militia system; to encourage those arts that supply and assist life, to cherish, by our example the purity & beauty of the religion of the Redeemer, the only stedfast basis of that morality on which republics are founded; and to transmit, untarnished and undiminished, to our posterity, those sacred principles of liberty and equal rights which we inherited from our fathers—these are some of the labors that remain for us to perform, and that our country has a right to expect at our hands.

I renew to you, fellow citizens, my solemn pledge of a determination to devote myself to the public good, and afford, to the full extent of the executive powers, a ready co-operation in all measures calculated to promote the peace, happiness and liberty of our constituents.

WILLIAM FINDLAY.

Harrisburg, December 16, 1817.

15th Congress.

IN SENATE.—Dec. 8.

Mr. Barbour gave notice that he should, on to-morrow, ask leave to bring in a resolution proposing to the several states an amendment to the Constitution of the United States on the subject of internal improvements.

December 9.

Mr. Barbour, of Virginia, in pursuance of notice given, introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, &c. That the following amendment to the constitution of the United States be proposed to the Legislature of the several states which when ratified by the Legislature of three-fourths of the states, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as a part of the said constitution: "Congress shall have power to pass laws appropriating money for constructing roads and canals, and improving the navigation of water courses. Provided, however, that no road or canal, shall be conducted in any state, nor the navigation of its waters improved, without the consent of such state. And provided, also, that whenever Congress shall appropriate money to these objects the amount thereof shall be distributed among the several states, in the ratio of representation which each state shall have in the most numerous branch of the national legislature—But the portion of any state, with its own consent, may be applied to the purpose aforesaid, in any other state."

The resolution was laid on the table.

December 10.

The resolution for the amendment of the constitution, relating to the internal improvements, was read the second time, and referred to a select committee, viz. Messrs. Barbour, King, Lacock and Eppes.

A message was received from the House, informing the Senate that they had concurred in the resolution admitting Mississippi in the Union, as a state.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

December 9.

A number of petitions were presented, among them was one by Mr. M'Coy, of Va. from a married pair of his district, praying a donation of land, in consideration of their having in the course of their matrimonial felicity of 27 years, reared a family of 20 children. 19 of whom are now living, thereby adding to the population of our country: which was referred to the committee of public lands.

Mr. WEST'S LETTER.

Extract of a letter from Benjamin West, to Samuel Coates, President, and the Managers of the Pennsylvania Hospital, dated London, Aug. 1, 1817.

Benjamin West, Historical Painter to his Majesty George the Third, and President of the Royal Academy of Arts in London, feels the highest satisfaction in informing the Managers of the Pennsylvania Hospital, of his having finished the Picture of our Saviour receiving the Lame and the Blind in the Temple to Heal them, which he has the honor of sending to Philadelphia, by the ship Electra, Capt. Williams, to be there deposited; and Mr. West bequeaths the said picture to the Hospital, in the joint names of himself and his wife, the late Elizabeth West, as a gratuitous offering, and as a humble record of their patriotick affection for the State of Pennsylvania, in which they first inhaled the vital air.—Thus to perpetuate in her native city of Philadelphia, the sacred memory of that amiable Lady, who was his companion in life, for fifty years and three months.

It is Mr. West's most sincere wish, that this donation may be of some pecuniary benefit to a Hospital, which is founded for humane purposes, and on principles of good will towards man.

Mr. West assures the Managers he has done his utmost endeavours to render that picture in every point of art, as perfect as his humble abilities would permit, and he requests the President and Managers of the Pennsylvania Hospital will accept his sincere thanks for the very handsome preparations they have made for the reception of his Picture, and assures them he shall ever retain a high sense of their liberality, and feel proud at his name being recorded in an institution which has his most cordial wishes in support of its benign purposes, and for its prosperity.

London, No. 14, Newman street, Aug. 1, 1817.

Printers of Newspapers in Pennsylvania, will confer an obligation on the Contributors to the Pennsylvania Hospital, if they will give the above extract a place in their papers, for the information of our citizens and the benefit of the Hospital

POLITICAL ACRIMONY.

From the Leesburgh Genius of Liberty.

TO THE PUBLIC. I publish the subjoined letter with this brief remark, that every man who, directly, or indirectly, avowedly or tacitly, lends his name, or gives his countenance, in any manner or form, to the insinuation, which some scoundrels have propagated, that I shrunk from the contest with Mr. John M'Carty at the last Loudoun election, or who would, in any way, attempt to produce that impression, is a vile calumniator.

ARMISTEAD T. MASON.

November 29th, 1817.

Williamsburgh Nov. 18th, 1817.

SIR, Yours of the 8th inst. has this moment reached me. A duty to myself, urges the unequivocal declaration, that I never did enlist the scurrility or sanction the calumny of any Printer, or Printer's Devil, against general Mason, or any other man.

Your obedient servant,

J. M. M'CARTY.

P. S.—If general Mason feels disposed to publish the above, he has my approbation.

General A. T. Mason.

A material for roofing, cheap and durable, is formed by dipping sheets of white paper (such as button-makers use) in boiling tar, and nailing them on boards or laths, exactly in the same manner as slates. Afterwards the whole is to be painted with a mixture of pitch and powdered coal, chalk, or brickdust. This forms a texture, which completely resists every description of weather for an unknown time. Extensive ware houses at Deal, Dover, and Canterbury, and churches and farm-houses in the north, have been so roofed for more than fifty years, without requiring repairs.

From the Baltimore Federal Gazette,
Dec. 10.

This morning, the Jailor on visiting the cell in which John Lamarde was confined, discovered, that the wretched man had put a period to his own existence. He had torn his shirt into pieces, these he twisted together and formed a rope with which he hung himself to a spike nail he had contrived to drive into the wall, thus executing on himself that sentence of the law, which, but two days before, had been pronounced in such an impressive manner. In his cell was found a paper on which he had written a few lines in French, with a pencil, of which the following is a translation.

A Chinese condemned to death by a special Court. It is to his honor to be his own executioner.

That which is virtue in one nation is a vice with another.

The Sun enlightens all.

What were you before you existed—nothing.

What will you be when you cease to exist—nothing.

So ends Jean Lamarde, aged 47 years 9 months and 4 days.

JEAN LAMARDE.

An instance of the art of theivery among Rats.

The following account of theivery among rats is given by a writer in the British Monthly Magazine, January 1 817,

"In my second letter on the preservation of grain, I noticed the sagacity of rats; and perhaps some of your readers will be able to parallel the following authentic facts. In the year 1744, the surgeon of a man of war observed the eggs rapidly decreasing from the sick sea store; and intimated to his mates, that he suspected they took some unwarrantable liberties. The young gentlemen conscious of innocence, were highly affronted; but the eggs were gone, they only had access where they lay, and they could only deny the charge. One of them said to the other that the sailors had a false key, and they ought to watch for their detection. They provided themselves with a dark lanthern & well armed, waited for the depredators. Soon after midnight a great movement near the cask where the eggs were packed up, induced them cautiously to turn the lanthern. They beheld a vast number of rats climbing up, and kept very still to observe the issue; in a short time they saw the party of rats return, each with an egg under his chin.

They next day informed the surgeon, he had the remaining eggs taken from the cask, and placed in a smaller dish, supported by a table, the feet of which receded so far, that the rats could not get up.

He attended with the dark lanthern, saw the invaders ascend the barrel, and came away disappointed; they prowled about a few minutes before they discovered the eggs. One of the men employed in their removal had left a spar leaning to the table; this was soon perceived by the rats, and some got up with alacrity. The surgeon by a stealthy movement, took away the spar before the whole party effected a lodgement; but they that had obtained possession, clinging together, made a pathway to the ground, and their comrades passed over their backs to the table; nor were they long till each retreated in the same way with an egg under his chin, which he would have carried off had not the gentlemen interfered.

The reasons, of an European writer, for the extraordinary population of China

"The superstition of the people, which makes them deem it unhappy to die without posterity, produces early and universal marriage."

"For many ages the country has been free from the ravages of war."

"The people of the East have been remarkable for eating little, often sustaining nature with the merest pittance of rice."

"The land, being all of it the Emperor's, is not divided into large estates among the great lords, but into small portions among the cultivators."

"Almost every thing in China being done by human labour, and there being scarcely any beasts of burthen, and but few reared for the table, a greater proportion (the whole with very little deduction) of the produce of the soil, goes immediately, in China, to the maintenance of human beings, than in any other country."

But the Chinese, notwithstanding for so many ages they have kept good so great a population, are far from happy. According to the concurrent testimonies of recent travellers, as well French as English, the appearance of the generality of the people they saw, in their journeys, by different routes to Pekin, was wretchedly squalid. Only half a century ago, China was represented as the Eden of the world—the seat of primeval simplicity, of pure morals, of most exemplary order, of arts and science, and in short, of human felicity. But since the interior of that vast country has been in some measure explored by the intelligent and honest travellers, the illusion is vanished. Con. Cour.

This Estate consists of about 700 Acres of Land, 250 of which is a rich Island, the remainder principally second bottom and upland; that part of the upland which is not tillable, is covered with timber suitable for furnishing the Island and tillable part with fencing and building timber. There is between 150 and 200 acres cleared and under cultivation, a suitable proportion of which in good meadow land. The buildings consist in two log dwelling houses and a log barn with under story of stone. It is well supplied with very fine springs of good water.

The situation of this property on the Ohio River five miles from the flourishing Town of Steubenville, and in the neighbourhood of several Merchant Mills, Iron Works, &c. renders it a desirable object to a person who would wish to farm extensively, as he would probably at all times find a good market at his door for the produce of his farm. A part of the purchase will be required in hand, and for the remainder a reasonable credit will be given.

PITTSBURGH.

TUESDAY DECEMBER 23, 1817.

On the 12th inst. Mr. Hopkinson, on behalf of the committee on the judiciary, reported to the House of Representatives, a bill to establish an uniform system of Bankruptcy throughout the United States; which was twice read and committed.

The bill for the abolition of the internal duties was passed in the House of Representatives on Thursday, the 11th, by a majority of 156, and read twice in the Senate, on Friday. In our next we will give the remarks of our representative, Mr. Baldwin, against the repeal.

Mr. Lacock, in the Senate, on the 12th inst. submitted a resolution for instructing the judiciary committee to enquire into the expediency of dividing the state of Pennsylvania into two federal judicial districts

The Mexican Gazette Extra, of October 31, received at Baltimore, by the schr. Cuba, captain Clackner, 12 days from Havanna, contains intelligence of the capture of the Patriot general Mina; the death of general Morena; the capture of the two Herreras, and other officers by surprise near the city of Mexico.

The President of the Senate, on the 12th communicated two memorials of officers of the navy and marine corps, lately serving in the Mediterranean, remonstrating in strong terms against the treatment received by Captain Heath, late of the marine corps from Commodore Perry, and the proceedings thereon, and in one or two other cases.

Among the bills before the Legislature of South Carolina now in session, there is one, the object of which is, to make the murder of a negro punishable with death. This crime has heretofore been punished by a paltry fine.

A committee of the Legislature of Georgia has reported in favour of raising the State Salaries. They say, "Men of the first talents and respectability are compelled to retire from the public service, only because a just regard to their domestic concerns imperiously requires it of them. It is true that persons can always be found willing to fill the public offices, at the present salaries; but it is not true that the best abilities of the country are brought into operation by them."

D. Parker, adjutant and inspector general, has issued a general order, dated at Washington, 1st Dec. informing all the cadets belonging to the military academy that unless they join the academy at West Point, before the 1st March next, they will be dismissed the service.

IMPORTANT.

MILLEDGEVILLE, DEC. 2.

INDIAN WAR.—The marching of troops to the frontier, and the other hostile preparations that are making, give to the approaching conflict with the Seminole Indians, all the pomp and parade of war. Within a few days, several companies have passed through here, on their way to the place of rendezvous. The detachment from this state, amounting to nearly 1000 men, assembled at Fort Hawkins yesterday, and will resume their march in a day or two—500 friendly Creeks, headed by their distinguished warrior M'Intosh, have espoused our cause, and are hastening with alacrity to the field of battle. Gen. Gaines has with him at Fort Scott, 700 regulars.

The subjoined intelligence of the commencement of hostilities, was received by the executive on Thursday last. The governor has ordered out the Pulaski troop of cavalry, a company of infantry from Wilkinson, and another from Laurens, for the protection of the frontier below Hartford. Other measures of defence will be adopted, should they prove necessary.

Copy of a letter from maj. gen. Gaines, to the governor of Georgia, dated at Fort Scott, (near the confluence of the Flint and Chatahoochie rivers) Nov. 21, 1817.

SIR—The first brigade of the U. States troops arrived at this place on the 19th instant. I had previously sent an Indian runner to notify the Fowl Town chief Enehe-munthy of my arrival, and with a view to ascertain whether his hostile temper had abated, requested him to visit me—he replied that he had already said to the commanding officer here, all he had to say, and that he would not come.

He had warned major Twiggs not to cross, or cut a stick of wood on the east side of Flint river, alledging that the land was his, that he was directed by the powers above and below, to protect and defend it, and he should do so. This being the talk referred to, and his town having continued to be hostile ever since the late war, having participated as the friendly Indians assert in the predatory war carried on for some time past against the Georgia frontier, I yesterday detached 250 men (supposed to be about the strength of the town) under the command of maj. Twiggs, with orders to bring to me the chief and warriors, and in the event of resistance, to treat them as enemies. The detachment arrived at the town early this morning, and were instantly fired upon, but without effect. The fire was briskly returned by the detachment, and the Indians put to flight with the loss of four warriors slain—and, as there is reason to believe, many more wounded.

Among the articles found in the house of the chief, was a British uniform coat, (scarlet) with a pair of gold epaulets; and a certificate signed by a British captain of marines, "Robert White, in the absence of col. Nichols," stating that the chief "had always been a true and faithful friend to the British."

The reports of friendly Indians concur in estimating the number of hostile Indians, including the 'Red Sticks' and Seminoles, at more than 2,000, independent of the blacks at and near Suwanney, within 120 miles of this place, amounting to near 400, and increasing by the addition of every runaway from Georgia, able to get to them.—The friendly Indians inform me that the hostile party and blacks have been promised a British force to assist them from New-Providence. This promise, though made by Nichols and Woodbine, is nevertheless relied on by these deluded wretches; who, I have no doubt, will sue for peace as soon as they find their hopes of British aid to be without foundation. I have called the militia from Fort Hawkins to this place, and have directed colonel Brearly to confer with your excellency upon the subject of an additional battalion for the protection of the frontier from Oakmulgee to St. Mary's.

I have the honor to be, most respectfully, your obedient servant.

EDMUND P. GAINES.
MAJ. GEN. COMMANDING.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DECEMBER 10.

Mr. Leib offered a resolution for the committee on roads and inland navigation, to inquire into the expediency of appropriating the duties arising from the sales at auction to opening a lock navigation to connect the waters of the Rivers Allegheny and Susquehanna with those of the River Delaware. Referred.

Mr, Noble moved that an item of unfinished business, relative to the formation of a new County out of parts of Bedford, Franklin and Huntingdon, be referred to a committee. The question being taken on referring, only 6 members rose in favour of it. Thus it appears that the House of Representatives are almost unanimously opposed to the formation of new Counties.

From the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, Dec. 11.

Fire at St. Johns—By the schooner Parker, Capt. Boyd, which arrived this morning in 8 days from Halifax, we learn, that a great fire occurred, in the latter part of November, at St. Johns, Newfoundland, which destroyed about 250 buildings, including stores, dwelling houses, &c. In one of the stores (belonging to Mr. March-banks) 800 barrels of flour were consumed. The fire originated in a Cooper's shop. The loss, in buildings and other property, is estimated at 200,000 pounds sterling.—Many of the inhabitants lost their all, and are reduced to a state of extreme poverty; and the whole Town, in consequence of the destruction of flour and provisions, are suffering severe distress.

Immediately after the fire, the civil authority laid an embargo on all vessels in port, and chartered them for the purpose of transporting those of the Inhabitants who could leave the town, to other places for subsistence. Several of the vessels, filled with passengers, arrived at Halifax on the 1st inst. and the Governor, on learning the extent of this calamity, ordered a number of small vesels to proceed to St. Johns, without delay, with supplies for the remaining inhabitants.

Latest from Europe.—The ship Independence, 45 days from London, arrived below yesterday, and brought London papers to the 18th October. Their contents are generally uninteresting.—A few items from them follow: Phil. Gaz.

The Hon. Henry Erskine died at his seat at Ammondell, on the 8th inst. The Right Hon. John P. Curran, the orator, died at his house at Bromptom

It has decidedly an advantage over the former method of window fastening: being incomparably more elegant, affording greater security to the window when closed, and by its certainty of self-acting, securing back the shutter when pushed open or blown back by the wind, and is cheaper and better than the old method

Patent Trace Chain.

THE subscriber has invented and obtained a patent for cutting and bending links to make chain of different sizes.

Chain made of those links will have a superior advantage over the chain made in the common way as the iron is first drawn into a wire which makes each link of an equal thickness and more beautiful and strong than the common chain.

To the wholesale merchant they will be sold at 21 doll. per dozen. The links will likewise be sold to blacksmiths or others at 23 dolls. per hundrod pounds with the necessary complement of rings, each chain requires six pound of links.

Orders accompanied with the cash will be promptly attended to by the subscriber at his works adjoining Pittsburgh.
